Rights and responsibilities Sharing feedback and concerns Advocacy and Liaison

As a customer attending the Child and Adolescent Health Service (CAHS) you and your child have the right to:

- Free public health services
- Treatment in order of need
- Be treated with respect and dignity
- Access a range of services
- An explanation of treatment and consent before being treated
- Request a second opinion
- Advice on care when you leave the health service
- Confidentiality
- Access to your health records
- Consent before being involved in training or research
- A simple procedure for making complaints

To help us provide better care, we need our customers to:

- Tell staff about their health history and that of their family.
- Tell staff about treatment or medication they are receiving when admitted to the health service.
- Tell staff about any change in their condition or any problems they may have with their treatment.
- Let staff know about any special needs they have, particularly any cultural, religious or access needs.
- Be courteous and respect the role of health service staff.
- Follow treatment instructions or let health service staff know if they cannot or do not wish to do so.
- Keep appointments or let health service staff know as soon as possible if they are unable to attend.
- Know that the health service has a special role in training health care professionals. Each person's treatment may provide an opportunity for such training.

To raise issues with staff members, you can:

- Discuss any concerns with the staff involved
- Ask to speak to a more senior staff member
- Ask to speak to the Advocate (see over page)

You can also lodge a complaint either:

Making a complaint will not impact negatively on any future service, care or treatment you may receive.

Information to include in your complaint

Describe the situation and include:

1. What happened, when and where it happened;
2. Who was involved;
3. What you would like to see happen as a result;
4. Your contact details, if you would like feedback.

The Advocate can assist you with the complaint process.

What happens next?

1. Your concerns are documented. None of the complaint documentation is filed with medical records. It is kept separately with restricted access. Your complaint file is confidential.
2. You will receive a phone call or a letter, letting you know your complaint has been received.
3. Your complaint will be investigated. This can take up to 30 working days. If there are delays, you will be informed.
4. Once the investigation is complete, you will be sent a letter (unless you indicate otherwise) detailing the findings and any intended actions. You will be offered the opportunity to comment and if you would like to meet to discuss the outcomes, that can be arranged through the Family Advocacy and Support Service.

If the service has been unable to assist in resolving your concerns, there are other agencies that can offer support.
